

1 CROWN OFFICE ROW

Matthew Barnes

Call: 2000

Matthew Barnes has a civil and public law practice focused on all aspects of medical law, including clinical negligence, inquests, regulatory, and public law. He is a highly recommended junior by both Legal 500 and Chambers & Partners.

In clinical negligence, his practice includes work for both claimants and defendants, covering a range from low value claims up to the highest value catastrophic brain injuries.

In inquests, he acts for both families and medical staff, and has experience of difficult and high profile cases. By way of example, in the last year, he has been instructed in approximately 15 inquests including acting for the family in a recent inquest into the death of Mr Andrew Pimlott, who died in circumstances where a police officer fired a taser at him whilst he was covered in petrol.

He is regularly instructed to act for Defendants in regulatory proceedings, including the GDC, the GMC, the NMC, the British Acupuncture Council, internal NHS Trust disciplinary hearings, and the Performers Lists for GPs and dentists. Generally, he acts for defendants, although he has prosecuted in cases involving removal from the Performers List. He has experience of cases involving criminal charges, and has been instructed to defend doctors in the magistrates' court and crown court.

He has extensive experience of public law, as is demonstrated by the reported cases set out below, and in particular has been involved in challenges to treatment decisions and appeals from the GDC and GMC.

'An excellent advocate who gets to the nub of the case very quickly.'

Legal 500 2021

"He is very impressive in court and in cross-examinations." "He is excellent, particularly in terms of his advice on tactics and in negotiations at settlement meetings."

"Astute, quick-thinking and tenacious." "He offers very solution-based advice and takes a common-sense approach."

Chambers & Partners 2021

Clinical Negligence

In clinical negligence, his practice includes work for both claimants and defendants, covering a range from low value claims up to the highest value catastrophic brain injuries.

Inquests

In inquests, he acts for both families and medical staff, and has experience of difficult and high profile cases. By way of example, he has been instructed in complex inquests, including acting for the family in a recent inquest into the death of Mr Andrew Pimlott, who died in circumstances where a police officer fired a taser at him whilst he was covered in petrol.

He is recommended in the Legal 500 as 'he has a natural talent for advocacy and getting to the nub of complex issues with ease.' Whilst Chambers & Partners 2021 say "he is experienced in healthcare regulation." "He offers very solution-based advice and takes a common-sense approach."

Professional Discipline & Regulation

He is regularly instructed to act for Defendants in regulatory proceedings, including the GDC, the GMC, the NMC, the British Acupuncture Council, internal NHS Trust disciplinary hearings, and the Performers Lists for GPs and dentists. Generally, he acts for defendants, although he has prosecuted in cases involving removal from the Performers List. He has experience of cases involving criminal charges, and has been instructed to defend doctors in the magistrates' court and crown court.

"A very confident advocate with a lovely style that manages to get people on his side and that demonstrates his really detailed knowledge." "He was extremely pleasant and relaxed in his manner, which was very reassuring for the client." (Chambers & Partners 2018)

"Excellent on the papers, quick on his feet and a source of tactical advice throughout." (Legal 500 2018)

"He is a very relaxed yet direct advocate with a refreshing style. He's very good at identifying the approach that should be taken in a case and is an excellent strategist." (Chambers & Partners 2017)
